

4 Oct 1918

Provo's Second West and Center Street intersection, of all places, was the scene of a train wreck October 4, 1918. The Rio Grande's "Heber Creeper" collided with the last car of a Salt Lake and Utah Railroad Electric Inter-urban. Fourteen persons were injured, including Mayor LeRoy Dixon, Schools Superintendant L. E. Eggertsen, and Heber Hicks, editor of the Provo Post. The home of George Taylor, pioneer merchant and photographer, is in background. The picture was taken by Samuel B. Robinson, Provo commercial photographer, and made available for this book by his daughter, Mrs. A. W. (Bernice) Adamson.

"Provo's Two Tabernacles"
— N. Laverl Christensen